Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

I think it's extremely imperative that the Bering Sea is protected. The Canyons are a rare feature on the planet, and they drive productivity along the Green Belt in our nation's most valuable fishing hole: The Bering Sea. This environment is home to whales and walrus, polar bears, fur seals and millions of sea birds. I urge people to act now to save this wonderful place.

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

My name is Sarah Watkins, and I am writing to you as a concerned citizen for the future of the Bering Sea Canyons and the countless species of fish and wildlife endemic to this region. By promoting industrial fishing in the canyon zone, you are quite possibly destroying entire ecosystems not found anywhere else on the planet, and with those ecosystems are also dying advancements in bioindustries such as medicine, food science and ecology. I believe that by working with organizations which promote sustainable fishing and consumerism, the American public can be moved to invest in a more healthful fish industry, both for themselves, the economy, and the planet.

Thank you for helping to protect our undiscovered habitats for our future generations.

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

I am concerned about the fragility of the marine ecosystem, especially as global warming introduces new challenges for the species that dwell in and rely upon the oceans. The Bering Sea Canyons are a treasure that can only become more valuable to the world as they support a broad diversity of life that helps to sustain endangered species and habitats elsewhere.

I urge you to preserve the Bering Sea Canyons by creating a no-fishing zone there. Their preservation ensures greater productivity in the rest of the Bering Sea and along the rest of the Green Belt. I understand the Canyons have only recently been explored and researched. It's possible that their preservation may provide benefits we can't even understand yet. It's clear to me that everyone benefits - native populations, fishing industry, consumers, and marine life - from the preservation of this rare and vibrant ecosystem.

Thank you for your consideration.

As a junior at the University of Southern California studying environmental studies, it brings me great concern that there are currently no protections in place for the Bering Sea Canyons or anywhere along the Green Belt. Industrial fishing in the Bering Sea is proving to be detrimental to the environment and local communities. Though I am sure that you are already aware, I feel it important to stress how currently employed fishing practices (such as bottom trawling) are destroying the ocean floor of the Bering Sea and endangering the lives of many species including polar bears, whales, fur seals and sea birds. I look to you, Chairman Olson and Council Members, to set an imperative example towards environmental and social conservation for international actors (who are no doubt closely watching) by creating a no-fishing zone in the Bering Sea Canyons.

RE: The Bering Sea, Agenda Item () C7-B

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

Coming from a concerned citizen, I believe I have an obligation to protect our wild life, including the Bering Sea. I think these practices are not being carried out well. I believe that there should be no fishing zones created in this area.

Sincerely,

Alyssa Jemley

RE: The Bering Sea, Agenda Item () C7-b

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

I would like to express my support the campaign to help protect the Bering Sea canyons off the coast of North America. Unsustainable fishing practices are destroying our environment, and some of these areas need to be protected from over-fishing. More sustainable fishing practices should be supported by all responsible citizens, & the North Pacific Fisheries management council's efforts are among those we should be actively promoting. The environmental benefits will be tremendous. Thank you.

Sincerely,

RE: The Bering Sea, Agenda Item () C7-b

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

As a mother and consumer of seafood, I am concerned at the fact we are being fed out of our ecosystems, especially in The Bering Sea. It seems that it would be desirable to create no catch zones in the Bering Sea Canyons to keep the supply of fish and other species available in the long term.

RE: The Bering Sea, Agenda Item () C7-6

Dear Chairman Olson and Council Members,

I thank you for taking the time to read this letter. I believe that the canyons are worth saving and that you should create no catch zones for them and allow for a future for the fishing industry and for seafood consumption.

Sincerely,

Lindsey Mays
